

b.creative

A creative introduction to ballet for secondary school pupils and teachers

Teachers' Day

Date Sunday 15 June 2014
11am – 4pm

Venue The Lowry
The Quays, Salford, Manchester

Cost £70.00, including a copy of the b.creative teaching resource b.creative is an innovative, new teaching resource designed by The Royal Ballet School to support teachers with introducing and creatively exploring the classical principles of ballet. The resource includes a written pack, accompanying CD and DVD featuring Royal Ballet School and state school students.

At the heart of the resource are four lesson plans, with extension activities for GCSE, A Level and BTEC dance. b.creative is not for sale and is therefore only available to those attending a Teachers' Day.

This day will be led by teachers from The Royal Ballet School's Dance Partnership & Access Programme. It will include an introduction to the b.creative resource and practical lesson ideas. No previous experience of ballet is required.

To apply please complete the booking form overleaf and return to Michaela Ellis by 2 May 2014.

From the use of this pack, the GCSE dance group I work with have started to think more technically in class, and are using a much better language within their dance vocabulary when analysing each other's work - Freelance dance artist

I trialled the resource with a mixed ability group of year 8 students and it proved most useful in guiding ideas which were supported by both the DVD and the CD...The teaching methods advocated in the resource are now being written into our foundation year for GCSE - Secondary school dance teacher
